CULTURAL MOMENT FOR JANUARY 27, 2025 CELEBRATES H. GORDON GREEN

H. Gordon Green was perhaps Wellington North's most famous personality. In the prime of his career, in the 1960s and 1970s, he was one of the better-known journalists and radio commentators in Canada. Green was a native of Arthur Township, where he was born on May 8, 1912 as the eldest of eight children. Coming of age during the Depression, he took on a number of jobs including farm hand (at 50 cents a day), country school teacher, and door-to-door salesman.

Green was destined to become a writer and enrolled in journalism at the University of Michigan, where he sold his first story to the Toronto Star Weekly for $50 (a fortune at the time). This was big money for the late 1930s. His childhood as an impoverished farm boy and experience with marginal employment opportunities had left an impression. After a brief stint at McGill studying medicine, he joined the army.

Following his service, he joined the staff of the Montreal Star. He was assigned to the Family Herald, the Star's weekly farm magazine that, at that time, was a fixture in nearly every rural and small-town household. Even though he was still in his 30s, Green had developed a down-home writing style that referred to his experiences in the 1920s and 1930s. He became editor and held the position for almost 20 years.

As time passed, he became something of a celebrity, a role he enjoyed immensely. By the 1950s, he appeared frequently on various CBC radio programs as a commentator and panelist. Green's radio career evolved into a short-syndicated commentary that was heard over dozens of radio stations in Canada. He became known as "Radio's Old Cynic," which suited his style.

In the 1960s he became engaged in politics and in 1962 accepted the nomination as the New Democratic Party candidate in the riding of Wellington-Huron. Although broadly supported and pulling in the largest vote ever for the NDP, he only managed a third-placed showing.

H. Gordon Green published several books, including Professor Go Home and A Time to Pass Over. He continued to write a column for the Star until his death of cancer on November 3, 1991. His last column appeared the day before he died. His final visit to Arthur had been in May 1990, for the centennial reunion of Arthur District High School.
